

Online Taster Course

Sport Studies

Assignment – module sport world & identity

Start by selecting a sport that captures your interest. Next, research and uncover when and where this sport first originated. Delve into the historical context that gave rise to its creation. Then, explore how the sport looked during its early days. This exploration should encompass aspects such as the rules governing the sport, the equipment used, the nature of the spectators, and the organization of the sport. Compare these historical characteristics with the modern version of the sport. Additionally, gather statistics and information about the current worldwide participation in the sport. Investigate any notable trends or shifts in the sport's popularity over time.

Finally, compile your findings into a concise report. This report should include an introduction to the sport, detailing its significance. Provide historical context regarding its origin and early development. Discuss how the sport has evolved, highlighting changes in rules, equipment, spectators, and organization. Finally, narrow down data on current global participation, and make observations regarding significant developments or trends.

Good luck!